Education B.F.A. Visual Communication Design, 2004, University of Washington

Visual Communication Design is a highly selective program that places emphasis on the conception, creation, planning and realization of visual solutions to complex problems in contemporary culture. Students integrate methodology, prototyping, aesthetics, human factors, technology, materials, context and audience to develop strategies and solutions that give form to print, screen and the built environment. In 2003, the program was ranked 13th best in the United States by U.S. News & World Report.

B.A. Comparative Literature: Cinema Studies, with Distinction, 2004, University of Washington

Professional Freelance Designer, Digital Kitchen, Seattle, WA. July 2004

Development of concept and execution of client presentation boards.

Graphic Designer, Dept. of Environmental and Occupational Health, U of Washington. May 2001-present.

Duties include the interpretation and communication of complex information for audience-driven design while working with a wide range of clients, from research scientists, to administration, to students; responsibility and involvement within the department progressively increased, leading to being given the responsibility for the visual design of several successful grant applications, totaling in excess of $20 million.

Personal

Two year president of the University Film Club, tripled membership and group funds, and lead the club from a fading organization to a regionally recognized cinema authority. Sought by area publicists to promote and sponsor events. Founded and organized 24 Hour Filmmaking Competition, which in its second year motivated the creation of over 40 short films (most by first-time filmmakers), the best of which were screened to a capacity audience.

Actively involved in volunteer and civic work for 10 years with the Boy Scouts of America, awarded their highest honor, the Eagle Scout award (earned by less than 2% of all Boy Scouts), August 1999.

Sought out, obtained, and followed through with opportunity to represent the student body in front of the Washington State Legislature to speak against tuition hikes.

Interested in travel: Used the Summer of 2000 to drive the circumference of the United States. Two trips to Japan, once in 2002 to tour the country, again 2003 to attend an IcoGrada international design conference.
